New Earth is held every three years to promote international trade of equipment and products and the exchange of technology related to global environmental conservation and restoration. It is held this year from October 26 to 29 in Osaka. The event attracts not only Japanese companies, but many Asian countries as well. With increasing concern being placed on the environment, this is an excellent opportunity to gain exposure in Asian markets.

Who should participate?

Companies with products, services or technologies in the following are strongly encouraged to participate:

- Energy – power generation, energy conservation, energy storage, clean energy
- Waste treatment and recycling
- Low emission vehicles
- Eco-friendly products – appliances, household goods, construction materials;
- Pollution treatment and prevention – water treatment and recycling (waste water, water, industrial), air pollution prevention, environmental monitoring systems and solutions, soil pollution treatment;
- Environmental policy and consulting

Who visits the show?

Professionals from various organizations directly linking to areas of interest with advancing the cleanliness of our planet Earth. They will have various backgrounds pertaining to one of the interests at hand.
